In a word, enabled to offer greater inducements to the citizens of Wilwere our supply of the raw material confined to what mington and of the State generally, to buy at home, than we receive from India, our great cotton manufacture has ever before been offered. Goods for the interior will be would dwindle to a small manufacture of coarse goods. scarcely equal to what it was in the reign of the first paper in defence of "distressed calico."

The parts of India, however, fitted to yield cotton for exportation are of wide extent, and quite competent to furnish England, under favorable conditions, with a large supply of good quality. Why, then, it may be asked, do not these ample provinces furnish such a supply ?-The answer is to be found in the rude state of Indian society when left to itself, and under bad government tenures, excessive and capricious taxation, bad police rivers, the want of roads, and even an ocean distance steads, Toy Bureaus, &c. jourfold greater from England than the country from which we derive our main supply of cotton, are in a good measure compensated by the cheap and abundant labor and genial soil and climate of India.

Indigo, sugar, raw silk, lac-dye, on the other hand, are all commodities demanding care and skill, and all are made fit for the market of Europe only through the care and superintendence of European capitalists .-In 1857 we imported those commodities, which but for English enterprise would have been unknown as Indian exports, to the value of £4,000,000.

Such cotton as India has heretofore produced is wholby the product of native industry, that is, of a very rude industry. For obvious reasons the Indian husbandman confines himself to the growth of the lowest quality.-He grows the coarsest variety, because with this plant, as with every other product of the soil, the coarsest is the hardiest variety, and consequently the easiest reared. China. No European has ever been encouraged to engage in the culture of cotton, or even settled in the districts favorable to the growth of the plant, and hence Messes. B. Page, Jr. & Co. cotton is down to this day in as rude a state as was sugar, silk and indigo before Europeans engaged in their production. When the tenure of land, when law and taxation are in a wholesome state, such as will enable Europeans to settle as proprietors, then, but not until then, will good cotton be produced in India. It is but five-and-twenty years since Englishmen were allowed to hold land in any part of India, and even then the territories including the cotton districts were excepted.

It may be considered as an axiom that all countries which furnish us cotton do so, both as to quality and quantity, in proportion to the goodness of their political institutions. At the top stands the United States of America, which furnishes two-thirds in value of our supply of cotton is a Government capable of giving protection to life and property, a result which can only be expected from a total reversal of the illiberal and rebellion-breeding rule under which its administration has heretofore been conducted. Only give Englishmen the same freedom of action, the same security for life and property, that men of the same race enjoy in the Southern States of the American Union, and they will inevitably produce (for neither soils or climates are wanting in the wide range which extends from the Indus to the Irawadi,) by free and cheap labor, all the useful varieties of cotton that are now, with all the disadvantages of dear slave labor, produced by men of the same blood with themselves. Until that takes place, it is idle to prate about suitable soils, varieties of plant, modes of culture, irrigation and such like irrelevant topics.

BŒRHAVE'S HOLLAND BITTERS.

THE CELEBRATED HOLLAND REMEDY FOR DYSPEPSIA, DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS, LIVER COMPLAINT, WEAKNESS OF ANY KIND FEVER AND AGUE.

Such as Indigestion, Acidity of the Stomach, Colicky Pains, Heartburn, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, Costiveness, Blind and Bleeding Piles. In all Nervous, Rheumatic, and Neuralgic Affections, it has in numerous instances proved highly beneficial, and in others effected a decided cure. This is a purely vegetable compound, prepared on strictly scientific principles, after the manner of the celebrated Holland Professor, Berhave. Because of its great success in most of the European States, its introduction into the United States was intended more especially for those of our fatherland scattered here and there over the face of this mighty country. Meeting with great success among them, I now offer it to the American public, knowing that its truly wonderful medicinal virtues must be acknowledged.

constitutions may have been impaired by the continuous use of ardent spirits, or other forms of dissipation. Generally, instantaneous in effect, it finds its way directly to the seat of life, thrilling and quickening every nerve, raising up the drooping spirit, and, in fact, infusing new health and vigor NOTICE.—Whoever expects to find this a beverage will be disappointed; but to the sick, weak and low spirited, it will prove a grateful aromatic cordial, possessed of singular remedial properties. CAUTION: The great popularity of this delightful Aroma has induced many imitations, which the public should guard against purchasing. Be not pursuaded to buy anything else until you have given Bærhave's Holland Bitters a fair trial. One bottle will convince you how infinitely superior it is to all these
